

In reference to Docket #01-184, any technical issues raised by wireless carriers should have been addressed when they agreed to open competition. To limit or restrict cell phone number portability is the same as limiting competition, and any attempt to do so by carriers should force them to be treated as a uncompetitive monopoly, under full government regulation that has the ability to truly punish. This is a critical issue in the evolving telecommunication age. This decision will have major repercussions for years to come. Please do not limit cell phone number portability. American business depends on competition. Phone companies cannot own phone numbers. Thank you.
